PRESIDENTIAL AVIATION RESPONDS TO COVID-19 OUTBREAK WITH NEW SAFETY PROCEDURES

Since Presidential Aviation's pilots, crew members, and employees fly internationally for business, the company's response to the COVID-19 outbreak was swift and decisive. Company executives are tracking CDC & WHO recommendations, and have implemented internal procedures above and beyond the norm to help stop the spread of germs in and around its aircraft. All pilots and flight crew members are now required to wear masks and gloves on flights for their own well-being and for the safety of our passengers. All aircraft are now deep-cleaned with disinfectant wipes and sprays before & after flights. Highly infected countries are off limits to our aircraft for everyone's safety, until infections decrease. And, although our facility is on lockdown to outsiders, our essential employees are now required to wipe down keyboards, disinfect phones and use viral-specific sprays in bathrooms, kitchens and conference rooms. We are doing our part to ensure safe and healthy travels for all this spring.
